

Miss Julia D King.

Miss Betty Grove, one of the season's debutantes.

Miss Patty Creecy.

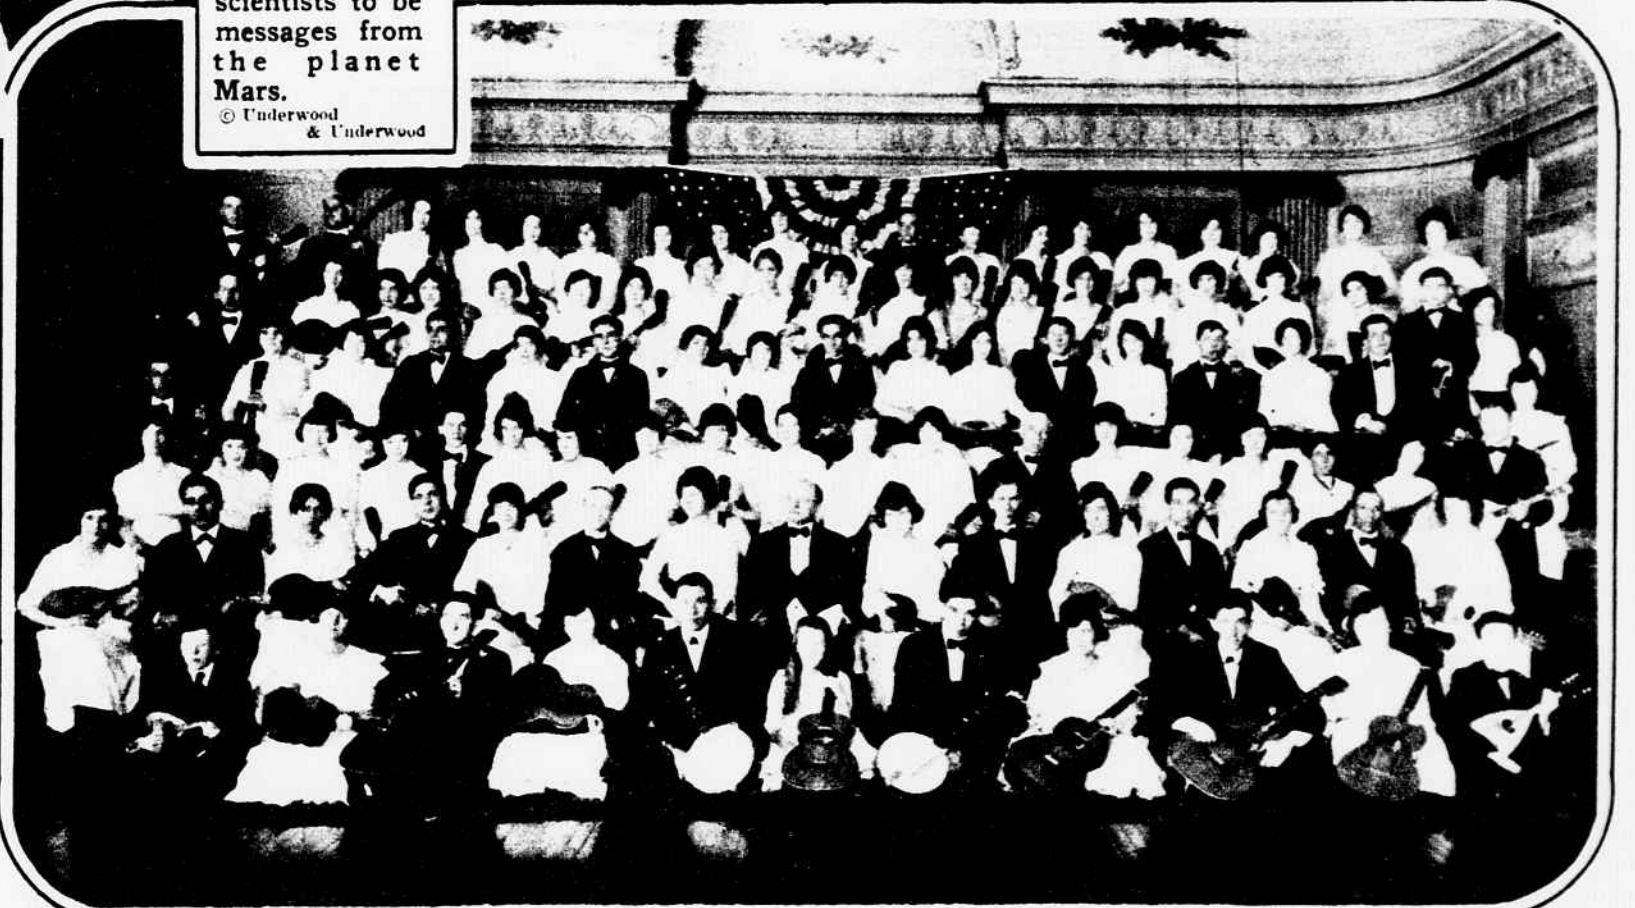

Signor and Lady Marconi on their yacht Electra just before they left England to sail about in their endeavor to fathom the mysterious sounds that have interfered occasionally with wireless messages and which are believed by some scientists to be messages from the planet Mars.

My word! Monocles for women have arrived! A sensation was created at the London opera recently when Mrs. Geoffrey Taylor, wife of aid-de-camp to the governor of New Zealand, appeared in a box wearing one eyeglass. The photo shows New York girls who have adopted the fad.

Elliott Woods, superintendent of the Capitol (at left) as a motion picture camera man. Superintendent Woods rides the "movie hobby," and this photograph shows him "grinding" out an arbor day tree planting in the Capitol grounds.

The Nordica Mandolin and Guitar Orchestra, conducted by Walter T. Holt, which recently gave two concerts in the ballroom of a Washington hotel.

Members of the Junior Red Cross of Ludlow School who shared in the "April shower" for the little patients at Children's Hospital.

One of the dancing groups in "The Right Girl," a play produced by Petracom Players, employees of the Federal Trade Commission, at the Post Office Department auditorium. Left to right, Misses Krapp, Herrity, Hackett, Corbett, Vincel and Simon. The play was under the direction of Dennis E. Connell.